

Solix Technologies

Company overview: Solix Technologies is a leading provider of enterprise data management solutions with proven success helping organizations worldwide to meet compliance requirements and achieve Information Lifecycle Management (ILM) goals and strategies. Solix has an extensive global client base, including Fortune 500 companies, and is considered the standard for enterprise data management.

Web site: www.solix.com

Product description: With the Solix Enterprise Archiving solution, organizations can create and deploy consistent policies for managing, securing and storing data from a single platform and single tool. The result is improved performance, improved availability through shorter backup and recovery times, lower labor costs to maintain the production system, and lower storage costs.

Compelling differentiation: Solix Technologies helps companies where growing data volumes in ERP, CRM, custom apps, and email and document repositories are creating undue burden on IT administrative resources and infrastructure. With data security and retention requirements, enterprises must deploy policies across all data repositories to ensure confidential data is secured, and data is stored or destroyed accordingly to avoid potential litigation.